Just Ageing? seminar 28 October

This seminar drew on new research from the Institute of Gerontology at King's College London to examine the impact of trigger events and lifetime experiences on inequalities and disadvantage in later life. It found that inequality and disadvantage may be driven by mid or later life events, such as separation or divorce, bereavement, taking on a caring role or becoming less physically active.

A summary report of this research is available to download in PDF format and Word format.
